The National Day of Prayer was made an official annual day of observance by Congress and President Truman in 1952. On this day each year the President issues a proclamation recognizing the celebration and asking Americans to pray, and government officials at the federal, state, and local levels participate in prayer ceremonies as representatives of the government. Obviously, many Americans and groups like the AHA oppose this government-sanctioned religious event as we feel it violates the First Amendment and excludes non-religious Americans.

The National Day of Reason was created to call attention to this unconstitutional event, in addition to celebrating reason and its societal benefits. Every year we call upon government officials at all levels of public service and of all political parties to issue a proclamation showing their commitment to the separation of church and state.

Last year, the Governors of Rhode Island and Nebraska joined with several mayors and Members of Congress in recognizing the National Day of Reason. This was a historic achievement for the humanist movement, as it showed that government officials recognized our concerns about the National Day of Prayer and were eager to work with us in celebrating a more inclusive holiday.

Something special is brewing for this fall. Watch these pages for an important announcement soon!

Religious humanists, secular humanists and atheists can all agree that this life in this world is our central and defining focus. Each one of us is responsible for human affairs, other beings, and the resources of our shared planet. Our vision for a democratic world is one in which every individual's worth and dignity is respected, nurtured and supported, and where human freedom and behaving responsibly are natural aspirations for ourselves and expectations of one another.

Humanists work to build a world in which happiness is the enduring criterion of social policy.

What is the Humanist Way?

1. To extend a human centered approach to the critical problems of life and society.
2. To encourage attitudes of kindness, compassion, tolerance and a loving generosity in human relationships, and in our treatment of all life. These attitudes help us to see ourselves in the lives of others and encourage appreciation for the remarkable diversity of human culture and experience.
3. To develop and popularize the skills of creative and critical thinking that empower people to challenge prejudice, superstition and irrationality in every area of life. Such empowerment enables the individual to reach the highest levels of achievement.
4. To exalt those artistic and imaginative expressions of life which have been the source of the greatest pleasure and enlightenment, and which reflect compelling human truths. Through music, literature, art, dance, and other expressions, we embrace the essence of what it means to be human.
5. To explore the grounds of ethics and morality within the unfolding history of our evolving culture. Such knowledge will enable us to become effective protagonists for the happiness of the individual person. JP

Literate Wit 5-15

1. Where there's a will, I want to be in it.
2. The last thing I want to do is hurt you; but, it's still on my list.
3. Since light travels faster than sound, some people appear bright until you hear them speak.
4. If I agreed with you, we'd both be wrong.
5. We never really grow up, we only learn how to act in public.
6. War does not determine who is right - only who is left.
7. Knowledge is knowing a tomato is a fruit. Wisdom is not putting it in a fruit salad.
8. They begin the evening news with 'Good Evening,' then proceed to tell you why it isn't.

Our next discussion will consider the Nature of Evil

It's a simple word whose curious reverse spelling is "live." And while the question of whom exactly it might be who knows "what evil lurks in the hearts of men..." we know it is no mere shadow. In fact, there is every reason to believe it is us, and that it is according to the great philosopher, Pogo, our worst and most intimate enemy.

It is for the cause of rooting out evil that millions are made to die and suffer through wars of religion and politics. It may well be observed that most great catastrophes are visited by us upon ourselves in the interest of imposing the "good" and vanquishing evil.

And yet evil is an alien presence in the mind of the popular imagination. Leaders and personalities associated with causes and events of great trauma become disassociated from our species as if they were not members of the human race. We do not recognize them as one of us. Maybe we should. Perhaps we need to identify the source of evil as nothing more exotic than the vagaries of genetics in the presence of the evolutionary conflicts of our culture as it encounters inevitable contradictions of growth.

But we need to know the nature of our discontents and clarify with more precision the identity of our faults if we are to ease the pressure of our enduring anxiety.

Climate change, along with the depletion of oil, coal, and gas dictate that we will inevitably move away from our profound societal reliance on fossil fuels; but just how big a transformation will this be? While many policy-makers assume that renewable energy sources will provide an easy "plug-and-play" solution, author Richard Heinberg suggests instead that we are in for a wild ride; a "civilization reboot" on a scale similar to the agricultural and industrial revolutions.

Afterburn consists of 15 essays exploring various aspects of the 21st century migration away from fossil fuels including:

- Short-term political and economic factors that impede broad-scale, organized efforts to adapt.
- The origin of longer-term trends (such as consumerism), that have created a way of life that seems "normal" to most Americans, but is actually unprecedented, highly fragile, and unsustainable.
- Potential opportunities and sources of conflict that are likely to emerge.

From the inevitability and desirability of more locally organized economies, to the urgent need to preserve our recent cultural achievements and the futility of pursuing economic growth above all, Afterburn offers cutting-edge perspectives and insights that challenge conventional thinking about our present, our future, and the choices in our hands.

The advent of fossil fuels changed the world profoundly (giving us everything from plastics and automobiles to global warming); the inevitable and rapidly approaching end of the oil-coal-and-gas era will likewise bring overwhelming transformation in its wake. My new book Afterburn explores that transformation—its opportunities and challenges—in sixteen essays that address subjects as varied as energy politics, consumerism, localism, the importance of libraries, and oil price volatility.

Afterburn is a book of "greatest hits"—that is, popular essays that have been previously published—similar in that respect to an earlier book of mine, Peak Everything (2007). Like that previous collection, this one has been carefully selected and arranged, and features an all-new Introduction.

Florida NOW

NOW is a multi-issue political organization. NOW's self-defined role has been to initiate change for the benefit of the greatest number of people, to affect the legal and institutional structures of the society in a way that systematically expands the choices and possibilities available to all women. In this way, NOW takes action to bring women, as a class, into the mainstream of society, rather than offering aid to individual women in achieving personal solutions or temporary relief from oppression.

The Florida National Organization for Women is a group dedicated to taking action to bring ALL women into full equality and participation through changing policy, law and culture. This mission attracts women and men of diverse backgrounds and gives us the ability to look at the systemic oppression in our lives and determine actions that will bring about change for all women.

Often, we are contacted by women and men who are facing "legal" situations, or in need of help for a group or individual. Unfortunately, we do not have the resources to provide direct services, and for legal reasons we can not provide referrals for lawyers or other services. If you need these services, please consider doing an internet search for local attorneys, referral services, legal aide, domestic violence shelters, or other terms that are appropriate for your individual situation. Good luck.

FLORIDA REPORT

Civil liberties news in the Sunshine State

The Florida legislature has spent a lot of time this session attacking women's reproductive rights by trying to impose a 24-hour mandatory delay on a woman seeking an abortion. The House version of this bill (HB 633) has already passed through three committees and is pending a scheduled vote on the floor of the house.

Tell your senator to support Florida women and vote NO on SB 724.

Not only is this 24-hour mandatory delay medically unnecessary, it only serves to interfere with a woman's personal and private medical decision.

The truth is that SB 724 is the Florida legislature's tool for dissuading a woman from having an abortion. The 24-hour delay only creates needless hurdles that impose financial, professional and personal burdens on women in our state. Don't let politicians play with our rights.

Take action to stop this bill in the Senate to protect the rights of women across the state of Florida. An estimated 1 in 3 women will make the decision to have an abortion in their lifetime and Tallahassee politicians shouldn't be involved in that decision making process.

The Humanities Institute at USF

<http://humanities-institute.usf.edu/about/>

Challenge, Create, Connect: Our new motto focuses our commitment to bring the beauty, values, and lessons of the humanities to USF and our community.

The USF Humanities Institute, established in 2003, provides a forum where ideas are debated, values are clarified, and students, faculty, and community come together to envision a better world through scholarship, debate, and public programs.

We showcase the scholarship of USF faculty from across the disciplines, as well as hosting renowned scholars and sponsoring small conferences and symposia on topics developed with faculty and students. We are developing distinctive signature themes, and strengthening our focus on relevance and community engagement, demonstrating that the joy and challenge of the humanities belong to everyone.

As part of our mission to encourage important research in the humanities, the Institute provides summer grants for humanities-focused research projects. Following the National Endowment for the Humanities, we foster a broad and inclusive definition of humanities, to include the contributions of scholars in language, literature, history, jurisprudence, philosophy, archaeology, religion, ethics, arts, and humanistic social sciences.

Meaningful Books

What are the arguments for and against religion and religious belief? The God Argument is the definitive examination of these questions, and a statement of the humanist outlook that recommends itself as the ethics of the genuinely reflective person. At Amazon, or your corner bookstore.

Magnanimity is in short supply," writes A. C. Grayling is this wonderfully incisive book, "but it is the main ingredient in everything that makes the world a better place" And indeed Meditations for the Humanist: Ethics for a Secular Age is itself a generous, insightful, wide-ranging, magnanimous inquiry Order

Ingersoll on CD: 2-CD set includes "About the Holy Bible" (1894) and "Why Am I an Agnostic?" (1889). The complete texts, without one word omitted ... performed with an oratorical flourish that does justice to Ingersoll's mighty words. Plus an introduction that places Ingersoll and freethought into the context of America's Gilded Age. Two complete works of Ingersoll performed in our time! 2-CD Set, $12. Click here to order

Thoughts of a Freethinker is the second book of local Humanist writer, Michael Kaye. Pensive considerations from an unencumbered mind lurking in the fresh air just outside the box. Order it from Amazon, or at your local book monger.

Join our Tampa chapter Sunday, May 10th : All paid up members of AoF are welcome to come to our Board of Directors meeting. See the AoF Meetup for details.

AoF is a comfortable and safe place in which to find rewarding new friendships, to discover hidden potentials, and make a positive contribution to your own humanity as well as that of others. We are pleased to offer legal assistance with church state separation issues as an important focus. For many people, atheism represents the most focused and powerful criticism of the philosophical worldview with which most of us were raised. It is liberating for the same reason it attracts the enmity of those who are committed to the closed and changeless narrative of unexamined traditional beliefs. JP

Enter the AoF 'Design our T-shirt' Contest!

Prizes: 1st place – this design will be adopted as the official t-shirt for AOF for one year. The designer will receive two free t-shirts. 2nd place – this design will be used to help “market” AOF. The designer will receive one free t-shirt of the 1st place design. All entries will have an acknowledgement on our website and a mention in the newsletter.

The winners may, at their option, also have a short bio and a photo published on our website and in the newsletter and a one year membership in AOF. For complete entry info, see: <http://atheistsoffloridainc.org/tshirt/>

Humanist Families of Greater Tampa

Jennifer Hancock started started this organization several years ago It uniquely serves Humanist families with a variety of wonderful programs throughout the year There is a strong emphasis on creative childrearing Here, you can make connection with other families dealing with the problems of living in a society that is still hostile to an explicitly Humanist Way of life. Jennifer is author of several books including: The Humanist Handbook, The Humanist Approach to Happiness, and her latest book, The Bully Vaccine.

Humanist Families organizes social outings every month. These are opportunities to do something fun, socialize and enjoy each other's company. Sometimes we go to a park, sometimes a museum, sometimes we go swimming. Our group has grown over the past year to the point we now organize Tampa area outings and Manatee/Sarasota area outings every month.

Throughout the year we host parties like Darwin Day in February, World Humanist Day in June, Freethought Day at Disney in October and Carl Sagan Day in November.

Among our spin off groups, is a Parenting Beyond Belief group which gets together to discuss the challenges of raising children without religion. We are on Facebook . Thank you!

Happiness Through Humanism: Excerpts: Happiness in the moment

While our moment-to-moment happiness depends on how we are treated by others, our larger sense of purpose in life is our own doing.

There was a recent study about every day morality – see report on it. What they found is that people receive and commit more moral acts than immoral acts, but we are twice as likely to hear about immoral acts. Something we all know but it's nice to have it validated by actual data.

The other big finding is that if you are a recipient of a moral act, you are more likely to act morally yourself within the next hour. This is something the scientists call “moral contagion.” In other words, being kind encourages more kindness in the world.

What has this got to do with happiness? Well, it turns out that being treated morally increases our happiness. No surprise there. But when you combine this with acting morally encouraging more moral behavior, you start to see the scientific underpinnings of the golden rule. You behave well because it encourages other people to behave well and when other people behave well towards you, it makes you feel happy.

What is really interesting is people who behave morally experience a big increase in their sense of purpose in life. Having a larger sense of purpose in your life not only feels good, it reduces stress improves your health and increases your lifespan. (see: <http://magazine.ucla.edu/exclusives/sense-of-purpose-makes-you-happy-and-healthy/>)

Apparently science backs up the Humanist approach to life. Be a good person, help other people be good too.

How Times Change

And yet, some things always remain the same. Like, how many of us hate change!

Routines are comforting. We don't have to think too much about them. We just do them, as if on autopilot and stuff gets done. Like, laundry, or filing an annual report, or any number of mundane work tasks.

Workplaces are filled with repetitive tasks. It's not just manufacturers who stick to their processes. All workplaces do. Whatever it is that has to get done, from cooking a hamburger to new client intake, to payroll all has a process.

And these processes are really helpful. They can help us get a lot of stuff done very quickly and with minimal error; precisely because – they are done the same way every time.

Processes are only a problem when we need to change them. And suddenly all heck breaks loose.

This Woman's Point of View By Toni Van Pelt
An enforcement tool, Fifty Shades of Grey
"An old story, repackaged"

Fifty Shades of Grey, the selling of male violence, domination, powerful and wealthy, is a very old story, repeated throughout the generations. In my day it was the Story of O. Yes, most women are turned on by many of these images of sexual bondage, degradation and humiliation.

I used to be myself. From the time I first experienced sexual fantasies it was usually an image of me kneeling at the altar in the catholic church with a priest coming up from behind me, inserting his penis and telling me to pray. It went on from there.

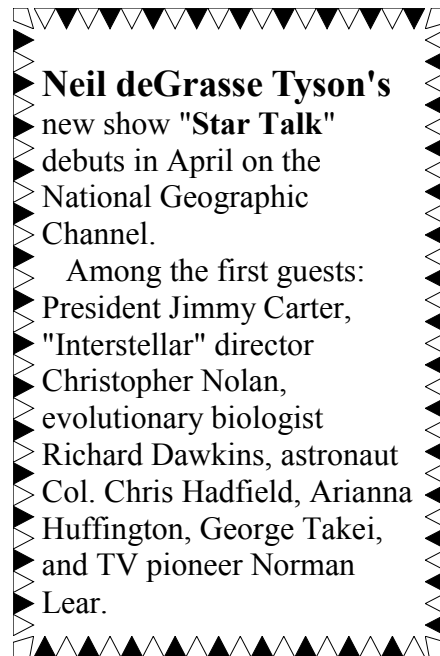

I imagine a number of catholic girls had the same kind of fantasies from a tender age and perhaps boys. How can it be any different in this society, that we are all turned on by abusive sexual images? As in all of planetary society, it is the way we are brought up and continue to bring up children. It is a big part of the grooming of girls, women and boys to accept violence and degradation as "normal" by the larger community. It is a huge part of the slavery industry.

Former Rep. Allen West: Church/State Separation is Responsible for Football Injuries

April 20, 2015 by Hemant Mehta

Last week, former Rep. Allen West spoke to a conservative group in Texas about the Freedom From Religion Foundation's battle against formal pre-game prayers at public school football games.

West explained that he never got injured when he played high school football because there was a team prayer before the games:

Now see, I remember growing up in the inner city of Atlanta, Georgia. I went to Grady High School and I played football. And we didn't have all this high-speed gear and everything like that. There was no such thing about "targeting." I mean, you were not a tough football player unless you did try to hit someone head-on.

And even in high school, before every game at Grady Stadium, the pastor would come down and pray over that football game. I don't remember catastrophic injuries. I don't remember anyone getting carted off that field paralyzed.

Miranda Blue at Right Wing Watch notes that football injuries have been going on for a long time — far before the Supreme Court banned school-sponsored Bible readings at public schools.

Also, keep in mind that professional football teams have their own chaplains... and the NFL isn't exactly known for its injury prevention.

Not that West cares. Even when he's not in office, he's still pandering to religious conservatives with lies.

Mischief follows in partisan Bible Translations

March 22, 2012 By Fred Clark

Remember Junias? He was the imaginary male apostle with the unique and implausible name. "Junias" was invented by patriarchal Bible translators and inserted into the text of scripture because those translators didn't like what the text actually said.

The text in question, Romans 16:7, says:

Greet Andronicus and Junia, my relatives who were in prison with me; they are prominent among the apostles, and they were in Christ before I was.

Junia is a woman's name and it just wouldn't do to have people reading about a woman who was an apostle — let alone one who was "prominent among the apostles." For patriarchal Christians who insisted on a male-only hierarchy, Junia was intolerable. So they got rid of her. They translated her into an imaginary man with an imaginary name.

Politics — specifically, the political desire to control women — shaped the translation of that text. The translators changed the words of the Bible to make it seem like it supported their political agenda. They changed the words of the Bible so that others reading it would not be able to see that its actual words challenged and contradicted their political agenda.

This is something that happens sometimes.

Let me share another, more recent, example. Junias was invented and inserted into the Bible a long time ago, but this alteration of the text occurred in my lifetime. As I noted earlier, this change in the words and meaning of the Bible is more recent than the introduction of the Happy Meal.

The Story of a Momentous Year: Milestone Triumphs in the Face of Great Challenges

2014 was a year of tremendous, groundbreaking achievements, advancing the causes of science, reason, and secularism in significant ways. It was also a year of incredible challenges, as the oppressors of free expression and the deniers of scientific reality accelerated their efforts to dismantle civilization's moral and intellectual progress. But with your support, the Center for Inquiry was instrumental in these milestone victories, and undaunted in the fight for the values of skepticism and humanism.

The meaning of life is not to be discovered only after death in some hidden, mysterious realm; on the contrary, it can be found by eating the succulent fruit of the Tree of Life and by living in the here and now as fully and creatively as we can. -- Paul Kurtz

CBC News reports: The Supreme Court of Canada has ruled the municipal council in the Quebec town of Saguenay cannot open its meetings with a prayer.

In a unanimous decision today, the country's top court said reciting a Catholic prayer at council meetings infringes on freedom of conscience and religion.

The ruling puts an end to an eight-year legal battle that began with a complaint filed by atheist Alain Simoneau and a secular-rights organization against Saguenay Mayor Jean Tremblay.

The court ordered the City of Saguenay and the mayor to stop the prayers. It also ordered the city and Tremblay to pay Simoneau a total of $33,200 in compensatory damages, punitive damages and costs.

The Supreme Court did not rule out the presence of religious symbols, because it decided to limit the scope of its investigation to prayer only.

In 2011, Quebec's human rights tribunal ordered an end to prayers, demanded that a crucifix in the city council chamber be removed and awarded damages to Simoneau.

But the outspoken mayor fought back, raising money from supporters through the city's website. Tremblay said it was a battle for Quebec's Roman Catholic heritage.

The Quebec Court of Appeal overturned the tribunal's decision in 2013.

The appeals court expressed some reservations about religious symbols in the council chamber, but concluded the city imposed no religious views on its citizens.

It ruled reciting a prayer does not violate the religious neutrality of the city and if the recitation interfered with Simoneau's moral values, the interference was trivial.

The Supreme Court of Canada agreed to hear the case last year.

State must be neutral, court rules

In 2008, city officials initially changed the prayer to one it deemed more neutral and delayed the opening of council by two minutes to allow citizens a window to return follow the reciting.

The Supreme Court said Canadian society has evolved and given rise to a "concept of neutrality according to which the state must not interfere in religion and beliefs."
